PREFACE.

A BRIEF genealogy of the descendants of Richard Everett, of Dedham, Massachusetts, was contributed to the New-England Historical and Genealogical Register, July, 1860, by Mr. Edward Franklin Everett, A. M., of Cambridge, Massachusetts, then a student in Harvard College. This genealogy was the nucleus of the present volume, to which Mr. Everett added new material, collected in leisure moments of his active business life. It had been his desire to visit England and search for the early home of the Everetts, the realization of which was prevented by his sudden death. His work, however, was left in such a comprehensive form that its publication was deemed advisable.

It was Mr. Everett's intention to include only descendants bearing the name of Everett. A few families of the female lines have been added, several of whose representatives have been of great assistance in publication. It is to be regretted that the record of some families is incomplete. Discrepancies between dates as given and those in certain family papers may, perhaps, be discovered, as it has been difficult to decide which of conflicting reports should be accepted.

A sense of deep obligation is here expressed to Rev. Melatiah Everett Dwight, of New York City, from whom came the first encouragement to publish the work, and to Mr. John Davis Weld, of Boston, and to Dr. Oliver Hurd Everett, of Worcester, Massachusetts, who have made its publication possible. Appreciation of the kindness of Hon. William Everett, of Quincy, Massachusetts, is also expressed for the interesting account of his distinguished father and family.

It has been the endeavor to complete Mr. Everett's work as he would have wished, and to make it a fitting memorial to the Everetts in America.

DESCENDANTS OF
RICHARD EVERETT OF DEDHAM, MASS.

RICHARD¹ EVERETT came to New England as early as 1636, although no definite information has yet been obtained as to the time of his arrival, or from what part of England he came. From the facts that he was for several years in the employ of William Pynchon, that Pynchon himself was connected by marriage with the Everard family of County Essex, England, and that Richard was a very common baptismal name in the same Everard family, it is surmised that Richard Everett was born in County Essex.

In the book "Descendants of John Dwight, of Dedham, Mass.," it is stated, in a foot note, "that Richard Everett and wife, Mary, came in the same ship with the original John Dwight," but no authority is given. The same book says that John Dwight came in 1634-5 from Dedham, England.

Tradition says that Richard Everett first settled in Watertown, Mass., but no record has been found showing this to be a fact: neither is there any record of his marriage to his first wife, Mary, or of the birth of his first two children, John and Israel.

In the "Note Book kept by Thomas Lechford, Esq.," the first lawyer in Boston, 1638-41, is a copy of a mortgage, given by "Richard Evered, of Dedham, in New England, Pharier," on the "16th day of March A. D., 1638," to "Thomas Nelson of Boston in New England, gent.," for ten pounds, on his "house and lott, lying in Cambridge in New England, and six acres of arrable land thereto adjoyning and five acres of medowe thereto belonging, wth the appurtenances." This mortgage does not appear on any registry of deeds, neither do the "Proprietors Records of the town of Cambridge" mention any grant of land to him; yet this shows that he owned property there, and would tend to the belief that he first settled there. He may have lived near the dividing line between Cambridge and Watertown, and in changing that line his residence may have been changed from one town to the other.

In the year 1636 it is known that he was with William Pynchon, who, with a party of settlers and their families, went through the wilderness as far as the Connecticut River, to a place called Agawam, now known as Springfield. There, on July 15, 1636, he made his mark as one of the white witnesses to the Indian deed, transferring the land to William Pynchon, Henry Smith and Jehu Burr. This is the first positive date that can be attached to him.

In the very next month, August 18, we find him back in Watertown, attending the first recorded meeting of the proprietors of the new town, called by them "Contentment," but which the General Court later ordered to be called "Dedham," as supposed, in honor of John Dwight, who came from Dedham, England. Everett's name is entered in the record, "Eu^rard." The proprietors held another meeting on the twenty-ninth, but he was not there. On the fifth of September following, he was present, and his name was attached to a communication to the General Court accepting the grant. His name was spelled "Euered," and this continued to be the spelling for several years. December 31, 1636, he was again present at the Dedham proprietors' meeting.

In the following spring, March 20, 1637, a town meeting at Springfield ordered John Searl and Richard Everett to lay out 24 acres of mowing marsh for Mr. Pynchon.

A year later, February 20, 1637-8, he was present at a town meeting in Dedham. In the following month, March 21, 1638, he was reported to have been present in Springfield at a very exciting interview between Captain John Mason and William Pyn-chon, as graphically described in the History of Springfield, by Mason A. Green (pp. 24-28). In this account he is called Mr. Pynchon's "trader."

On August 28, and November 23, the same year, he is recorded as being present at town meetings in Dedham. January 3, 1638-9, at Springfield, a general meeting of the plantation appointed a committee of six to lay out bounds on both sides of the river, and he was named as one of that committee. This committee appears to have given prompt attention to their work, as they made their report five days later, on January 8. At the next town meeting in Springfield, the thirteenth of the same month, an assessment was laid to pay a portion of the cost of building the minister's house, and another assessment to pay his salary. Everett was assessed £1: 10s. for the former, and £1 for the latter. Three days later he received his only grant of land in Springfield, a lot one rod wide, between John Woodcock's pall, and Goodman Gregory's lot. This lot of one rod wide was probably taken of the town with the view of adding it to Gregory's lot, which Everett was intending to purchase. The committee on certain highways in 1770 reported:

"Comparing Thomas Stebbins record with what was written in the old Town Booke, bearing date of January 16, 1638, namely, It is ordered that three rod wide of ground which lyes betwixt John Woodcocks pall and Goodman Gregorys that 2 rods shall be appropriated to Goodman Gregory, and one rod to Richard Everett. Goodman Gregory sold his lot to the town, and May 1st, 1645, the town gave said lot to Thomas Stebbins, but we find no mention of that rod that was given to Richard Everett, who deserted the Town. We suppose it fell into the Townes hands again."

On March 25, 1639, two months later, he was present at a Dedham town meeting. For the next twenty-one months we hear no more of him; undoubtedly he was most of the time at Springfield. December 29, 1640, he was again recorded present at a Dedham town meeting. Up to the preceding May, all affairs had been managed by the town meetings, but in that month it was voted to put the execution of common affairs into the hands of seven men, who were called Selectmen.

In 1641 he was in Springfield, when a town meeting ordered a new road laid out by the side of his lot. There is no mention of him again for nearly two years, when he was recorded present at the Dedham annual town meeting, January 2, 1642-3. Meanwhile, he had been receiving grants of land in Dedham, — his dividends as a proprietor; February 6, 1642-3, he received 7 acres, 2 roods, 1 pole. This was upland ground for ploughing, being a dividend of land among all inhabitants, — 68 in number; in this division only nine had larger lots, showing that he was a thrifty, forehanded man, accumulating a considerable amount of this world's goods.

The next month, March 14, 1642-3, he was again mentioned at Springfield, when Henry Gregory proposed to sell his land to Richard Everett, but the town took it. Three months later appears the last record of him, in Springfield. Under the date of June 29, 1643, in the Town Records, is entered the marriage of Richard Everett and Mary Winch. She came, aged 15, in the "Francis" of Ipswich, April, 1638, with the family of Rowland Stebbins.

From that time forward he made Dedham his permanent home. At the annual town meetings, January 1, 1643-4, and 1644-5, he was recorded as present. This last meeting was one of the most important town meetings ever held in Dedham, as it inaugurated the system of free town schools, by a vote as follows: "The s^d Inhabitants takeing into Consideration the great necesitie of providing some meanes for the Education of the youth of o^r s^d Towne did with vnanimous consent declare by voate their willingnes to promote that worke promising to put too their hands to prouide maintenance for a Free Schoole in our said Towne.

"And farther did resolue & consent testefying it by voate to rayse the some of Twenty pounds ꝑ annu: towards the maintaining of a Schoole m^r to keep a free Schoole in our s^d Towne."

Forty-two names are recorded as present, among whom were Richard Everett, John Dwight and Ralph Wheelock, ancestors of five subsequent college Presidents: Edward Everett of Harvard, Alexander H. Everett of Jefferson, Timothy Dwight of Yale, Eleazer and John Wheelock of Dartmouth. In 1645 the "Great playne" was ordered to be fenced, and each proprietor was made to build a certain length in proportion to land owned; out of 70 owners, he was the thirteenth in amount required.

He was admitted into the church in Dedham, March 6, 1646, and his wife, Mary, was received the same day; on the fifteenth of the same month, "the children of our brother Everard were baptized." The General Court made him a freeman, May 6, 1646, and from this time on he served as a town officer, and on town committees, frequently being called on to lay out lots and roads. The first was January 1, 1646-7, when, with two others, he was appointed to lay out to Richard Wheeler and John Farrington, two acres of upland "beyond the house Lott of said Richard Euered."

The first tax found against him is for his "countrey rate," in 1648, when his house was valued at £4: 6: 10, being the fifty-seventh in point of value, out of 80; and his tax was 3s., being the seventy-eighth out of 90 persons assessed. He gradually acquired property, his tax increasing year by year, until 1660, when it was third in amount assessed, out of 87 names. About this time his children began to marry, to each of whom he gave lands, and his assessed value began to drop.

In 1649 he was reported behind in his highway tax, and fined 2s. In 1650 he was on a committee to take care of repairing the bridge over the little river near the house of John Dwight, and the bridge over the mill creek. At the town meeting, January 1, 1650-1, he was elected one of the three surveyors and a constable, and at a meeting of the selectmen August 30, they remitted the country rate of fourteen inhabitants, on account of sickness, lameness, etc.; among them was Richard Euered.

He was constable again in 1652 and '53. In the former year he also served on a committee to lay out the way between Dedham and Braintree, and in the latter year, to lay out to Ralph Freeman two acres beyond the end of the east street. He petitioned to have his dividend and the remainder of his purchased land at the southerly end of the south plain, "as it abuts upon that brook that runs into south meadow, or if not all there, then what he may with convenience."

In 1655 he was again elected surveyor. The next year the general town meeting ordered the selectmen to divide the common rights of feeding and divisions of land, to the present inhabitants, by the rule of persons and estates. Under these instructions the selectmen found 79 persons entitled to shares, the richest man in town being Ensign Chickering, with a valuation of £309: 16: 0; the next was Rev. Mr. John Allen, £261; the tenth was Richard Evered, £185.

In 1659, he was on a committee of three, to act with a similar committee from Dorchester, to lay out the highway between Dedham and Dorchester, and he was also on a committee of eight to lay out 2000 acres granted by the town to the Indians at Natick. He was granted in June, 1660, land "adjoining Neponset plain, and northward thereof, or if that is already divided, at a place called 20 acre plain." It was finally laid out at the latter place.

In 1660, there was an upheaval in town affairs, and so much dissatisfaction with the town officers, that at the annual town meeting, January 1, 1660-1, all were turned out, and a new set elected; among the new selectmen was Richard Everett; and furthermore, the town meeting voted that the selectmen should not have as much authority as their predecessors had. This necessitated numerous town meetings, and at the end of the year a compromise was made, with half of these men re-elected and half of the old set again chosen to office. In this re-arrangement, Richard Everett lost his position as selectman, but was appointed fence viewer, and assigned to the "low plain." He not only lost his office as selectman, but he fell behind in his highway work three days, and was ordered to work it out between his house and that of Thomas Metcalf. Still more trouble came to him, as on January 21, 1661-2, a committee was appointed to treat with him, and examine whether all of his ratable estate was given in for the country rate. As there is no record of any answer, it is to be presumed that he satisfied the committee. This year the town clerk spelled his name Everit for the first time on the Town Records.

In 1663, he was on a committee to lay out land for John Farington, upon Neponset plain. In March the proprietors of Woolomonupake (Wrentham) drew their lots. He drew lot No. 8, containing $11\frac{1}{2}$ acres, 24 rods.

In 1664, he served on more land committees, and was again reported behind in his highway tax. There was recorded, this year, a list of all the dwellings, with values thereof. The most valuable was that of Timothy Dwight, rated at £40; next "Lieft. Josh Fisher," £25; then there were ten ranging from £20 to £14, followed by nine at £12, one of which was his. That of his oldest son, Capt. John, was valued at £6, and his second son, Samuel, was credited with two, valued at £6 and £4. This year his country rate was again questioned. He appears to have had some horses to board for Mr. Bumstead, of Boston, for which he paid no tax; on this account he is assessed 3s. 8d. more.

In 1665, he stands fifteenth out of 89 on the tax list. At a meeting of the selectmen, 26th of 10th mo., the request of James Mackrorey that a grant of five acres of upland, the gift of his father-in-law, Richard Euered, be laid out to him, somewhere near his house, was granted. At a division of land at Meadfield he drew lot No. 70, which appears to have been in the present town of Norfolk.

In 1666, the selectmen entered on their records a corrected list of legalized voters, 83 in number. Among them were Richard Everett, his two sons, John and Samuel, and his son-in-law, Cornelius Fisher. In 1667, Richard Everett collected from the town 20s. for killing two wolves.

In 1669, the town bought from Philip, sagamore, all his rights in lands within the town bounds, not yet purchased, for £17: 8: 0, and 80 town proprietors were assessed this amount. Everett's share was 6s. 9½d.; two others paid the same, and eight others paid more, Ensign Fra. Chickering heading the list with 11s. 10d. The rate was 8d. per cow common according to the first grants. On the school tax list of 1670 appeared not only Richard Everett, but also his two sons, and two sons-in-law; and henceforth all five names appear on the various tax lists.

Richard Everett's active work in town affairs ceased at this time and the labor fell upon his sons. He paid his taxes as they were assessed, and stood about tenth in wealth on a list that averaged one hundred names.

In 1673 and '74, a new meeting-house was built, and in assigning the seats many individuals became dissatisfied. From the Town Records it appears that Richard Everett asked to have his wife's seat changed, saying that the Widow Morse was willing to make a change. This request laid over one town meeting and was then granted, and the selectmen, the Elder being present, agreed that Sergt. Avery, Sen., and Richard Euerid "shall set in the Deacons' seat." The natural inference is that these two men had partly lost their sense of hearing.

January 1, 1678-9, the proprietors divided the money in hand from land sold, among themselves, at the rate of 1s. per cow common, and Richard Everett received 10s. 2d. On March 5 of the same year the selectmen granted him "permission to cut timber from the Town comon for 200 rayles and posts proportionable," and January 30, 1681-2, they again gave him "liberty to take timber of the Town commons for boards to repair his house and barn, so much as is necessary."

The last tax assessed him was April 27, 1681, and as he died the following year, it is fair to presume he was confined to the house, and perhaps to his bed, most of the intervening time, it being a custom of the town to exempt the sick and absentees from taxation.

Richard Everett died July 3, 1682. He made his will 12 d. 3 mo. 1680, or May 12, 1680, and it was proved July 25, 1682. [Suffolk Wills, 1233.]

SECOND GENERATION.

Capt. JOHN² EVERETT (*Richard*¹), baptized 15 d. 1 mo. 1646, in Dedham, Mass.; died June 17, 1715, in Dedham; married in Dedham, May 13, 1662, Elizabeth Pepper, daughter of Robert and Elizabeth (Johnson) Pepper, of Roxbury. She was born May 25, 1645, and died Apr. 1, 1714, at Dedham.

The name of John Everett first appears in the town records of Dedham in 1662, when in the tax list of that year he is assessed "0.. 4.. 8." In 1668 and 1674 he received small grants of land. He was chosen fence viewer eleven times between 1671 and 1700; constable in 1678, 1684 and 1698-9. In 1676 his house was valued at £5, his name being the thirty-ninth in a list of seventy-seven. He is named on a committee to run the line between Dedham and Dorchester in 1682, 1685-6, 1691, 1694 and 1697; and in 1684-5 on a committee to buy of Josias, sachem, a right of land south of Neponset River. In 1685 he and his brother Samuel paid 7s. 8d. for clearing the Indian title to their father's land. He was one of a committee to lay out highways in 1685-6; surveyor of highways in 1704 and 1705; tithing-man in 1700.

He is first styled captain in 1693, in the town records of Dedham.

During King William's War he was called into active service to command a company of men stationed in New Hampshire and Maine, to protect the inhabitants from the Indians.

After the massacre at Oyster River (Dover), N. H., in July, 1694, the Council of New Hampshire applied to Massachusetts for men to assist in protecting the frontier from further attack by the Indians. Massachusetts consented to send the men, provided New Hampshire would pay for their subsistence and ammunition, and one-third of their wages. This New Hampshire agreed to do, and to the letter of agreement the following reply was sent by Governor Phips of Massachusetts:

Boston, Nov. 12th, 1694.

Sir — Yours of the 8th current I received, and in answer acquaint you, that there is care taken for the raising of sixty soldiers. Those that are detached out of Col. Gedney's and Col. Appleton's regiment, are ordered to Rendezvous at Newbury on Thursday next, and will be directed to march thence for your Province with speed; others raised in Boston, and the regiments near Boston will be ready on Thursday also, to take the first opportunity to come by water; and the remainder are to come from Plimouth, but cannot be expected here until next week, and then they shall be sent away by water to join with the rest for their Maj'ties' service, with all dispatch that can be.

Your humble servant

WILLIAM PHIPS.

[N. H. Provincial Papers, Vol. II, p. 141.]

That Capt. John Everett had command of the company thus raised is evident from the papers which follow. Just where he was first stationed does not appear, but Jan. 9, 1694-5 he was a witness to the will of Francis Hook, of Kittery, Me. [Maine Wills, p. 108.]

In May, 1695, the following petition was sent to Lieut.-Gov. Usher, then acting governor of New Hampshire, by Capt. John Everett:

To the Honn^{bl} John Vsher Esq^r his majisties Leift^t Goven^r and Coman^{dr} in Cheife and over the province of Newhampshire and to his Honn^{bl} Council now Sitting at New Castle

JOHN EVERET

[Mass. Archives, Vol. III, p. 492.]

In answer to this petition the Council Records of New Hampshire show the following:

At a Council held at New Castle May 21, 1695.

Whereas Capt. Jno. Everitt preferred a Petition to this Board, that they would order him £144: 3: 0, for one third part of pay of the soldiers under his command for the 6 mo past;

The Board answers, it is not Capt. Everitts business to make any such demand, it concerning no one to demand any such thing, except the Government that gave him his Commission. [N. H. Provincial Papers, Vol. II, p. 157. Mass. Archives, Vol. III, p. 492.]

Sixteen days later Lieut.-Gov. Stoughton sent the following letter to the President and Council of New Hampshire:

Hon^{ble} Gen^l.

You may please to remember that upon a motion and desire from yourselves for some assistance, there was a detachment of betwixt fifty and sixty men under the command of Capt. John Everet, posted in your Province, your General Assembly having engaged for to subsist and pay them one third part of their wages. The time proposed for their stay there is sometime since elapsed; I have received nothing from your Government of any desire for their continuance, altho' I wrote unto Lt. Govern^r Usher concerning the same; nor do I understand that they have received yo^r proportion towards their wages already grown due, or any provision made for the future; and there being occasion for a company of soldiers to wait upon our Commissioners, intended to be sent to Pemaquid on the negotiation there relating to the Indians, I have seen cause upon advisement to send orders to Capt. Everet to attend that service with his company; of which I thought fit to acquaint yourselves, that you may provide for the inforcement and security of your out Posts upon their remove; and expect that for the time past you do advance your proportion towards their Wages before their drawing off.

Your Friend and Servant,

WM. STOUGHTON.

[N. H. Provincial Papers, Vol. II, p. 158.]

At the same time Lieut.-Gov. Stoughton sent a letter to Capt. Everett:

yo^r Lo: Friend. W. S.

[Mass. Archives, Vol. LI, p. 33.]

At a meeting of the Council June 12 an answer to Lieut. Gov. Stoughton was drawn up, in which excuse was offered for the non-payment of the soldiers, and a request made for their return.

Capt. Everitt has now drawn off his men from our frontiers to Portsmouth & New Castle, and waits only the arrival of the Vessel to attend your Honor's commands for Pemaquid; and if upon the despatch of that affair you will please to order his return to us, we are well assured our Assembly at the Sessions in September next will take effectual care for payment of our proportion of wages both for time past and future. [N. H. Provincial Papers, Vol. II, p. 159.]

June 17, Capt. Everett addressed a reply to Lieut. Gov. Stoughton:

In the spring of 1695, the officers of Fort William Henry had met some of the Indians on an island near Pemaquid, and the Indians had agreed to a truce of thirty days, until commissioners from Boston might arrive to negotiate with them. The commissioners appointed were Col. Phillips, Lieut. Col. Hawthorne and Major Converse, and the conference was held June 19. It was upon these commissioners that Capt. Everett and his company had orders to attend. A few days later follows a letter from Lieut. Gov. Stoughton to Capt. Everett :

Cap^{ne} Everett

The Govern^{mt} of N. Hampshire have written unto me desiring that yo^r Selfe and your Comp^a might be ordered to yo^r Post with them upon yo^r return back from Pemaquid and have assured the payment of their proportion of wages both for time past & future. Upon which I have consented to yo^r return thither and do accordingly so order you to land yo^r men at Piscataqua; and dispose them to their late Posts; that they may then attend his Maj^{ty}s Service. And to that End, Acquaint the Comissioners, and master of ye Sloop with this Order; that so they may direct, that y^e Sloop touch at Piscataqua to put yo^r Selfe and Company on shore there.

[Mass. Archives, Vol. LI, p. 33.]

On Aug. 8, the Council of New Hampshire, in answer to Lieut. Gov. Stoughton, wrote that "in about a months time our assembly is to sitt, and then we are well assured effectual care will be taken therein, both for time past and for Future. In the meantime some particular Gentlemen of our Province are the sufferers, who have already advanced the money to Capt. Everitt, although at present he stands obliged, which we shall endeavor speedily to free him from." [N. H. Provincial Papers, Vol. II, p. 162.]

Sept. 9, a petition from Mr. Thomas Holland, agent for Mr. John Taylor, of London, merchant, was presented to the Council of New Hampshire, asking that Capt. Everett and his company be sent as a guard to some persons employed in hauling masts out of Exeter woods. Capt. Everett was the same day ordered to go to Exeter and "when that service is over to return to your several posts." [N. H. Provincial Papers, Vol. II, p. 163.]

Sept. 12, Lieut. Gov. Stoughton sent to the Council another letter, "to refresh the remembrance of your Engagement respecting the Support of Capt. Everet and his Company. The accompt of their Wages from the time of their detachment, until they were drawn off by order, amounts in the whole unto Five hundred and eight pounds, eight shillings and four pence. One hundred sixty-nine pounds, nine shillings and five pence being one third of the whole is your due to pay according to agreement, which I hope you will make effectual provision to see speedily discharged as also like provision for what is become due since their Return again, and that shall arise during their Continuance within your Province." [N. H. Provincial Papers, Vol. II, p. 163.]

A month later, Oct. 9, the Council answered to the effect that "the Assembly did their part for the support of Capt. Everitt and Company, and Rates are now collecting to answer the same forthwith for the time past, and for the future shall use our utmost endeavor to prevent any Complaint against us for not doing our part according to the Forms formerly agreed, soe pray your Honor by no means to Draw off Capt Everitt & Compa'y, their continuance here being so necessary for His Majestys Service, and the defence of his subjects, the poor inhabitants of this Province." [N. H. Provincial Papers, Vol. II, p. 165.]

In reply, Lieut. Gov. Stoughton, on Oct. 12, informed the Council "that with the advice of the Council here, I have ordered Capt. Everitt, with his men, into the Province of Maine, there to remaine to supply the absence of Capt. Chub, who with a part of the Company under his command is forthwith to goe to Pemaquid for his Maj'tys Service in that Garrison. This I have done upon such considerations as were and still are, of great weight with me, so that I cannot Countermand anything at present." [N. H. Provincial Papers, Vol. II, p. 165.]

Capt. Chubb had been stationed at York, Me., as early as the previous May, "to range the woods as far as Casco Bay," and at Wells in September following. In October he was ordered to command Fort William Henry at Pemaquid, which he so ignominiously surrendered to D'Iberville and Castine, with their Indian allies, in August, 1696.

Jan. 7, 1695-6, a complaint was entered at the Court held at Wells, Me., by Capt. John Everett and Sergt. Daniel Black, against John Woodman of Kittery, for not "giuing due attendance at y^e fferry from Kittery to Portsm^o."

Nov. 18, 1696, a petition was presented to the Massachusetts General Court by Samuel Wheelwright and others, of Wells, Me., for an abatement of taxes, and a request made that Capt. Everett and his soldiers, then stationed there, might help them rebuild their fort. This petition was granted Dec. 5, 1696. [Mass. Archives, Vol. III, p. 384.]

The Treasurer's account of Massachusetts for 1697, shows the following item:—

Paid Cap^t Jn^o Everet & Compan^y being 153 men by turnes y^t served his Maj^{tye} und^r his Command posted at York & Wells p^t Anno 1695 p^t 1696 £658 .. 9 .. 9. [Mass. Archives, Vol. CXXII, p. 76.]

This is the last item found concerning Capt. Everett on the Massachusetts records, and as his name appears on the Dedham town records under the date Apr. 2, 1697, and peace was declared during that year, his service for the Province probably closed with the rebuilding of the fort at Wells. His will was dated Aug. 16, 1710; proved July 7, 1715. [Suffolk Wills, 3668.]

Rev. (afterwards Judge) OLIVER⁵ EVERETT (Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), was born June 11, 1752, in the Second or South Parish, of Dedham, Mass., now Norwood; died Dec. 19, 1802, at Dedham; married Nov. 6, 1787, by Rev. John Eliot, Lucy Hill, daughter of Alexander Sears and Mary (Ritchie) Hill, of Boston and Philadelphia, born Jan. 12, 1768, at Philadelphia; died May 4, 1824, at Dedham.

Oliver Everett was apprenticed to his older brother, Aaron, to learn the cooper's trade: but as soon as he became of age he determined, if possible, to get a college education. He succeeded in this effort, entering Harvard College in 1775. The college buildings were then in the occupation of the revolutionary army, and the pupils transferred to Concord. Mr. Everett was graduated here in 1779, but there was no public commencement. Among his classmates were Hon. William Gordon, of Amherst, N. H., a member of Congress, in 1797-1800, and Hon. Nathaniel Appleton Haven, M. D., of Portsmouth, N. H., member of Congress, in 1808-10. He was admitted to the Second Church, of Dedham, Apr. 23, 1780, and pursued the study of Divinity under his brother Moses, and on the 4th of Oct., 1781, received an invitation to settle at the New South Church, on Church Green, at the fork of Summer and Bedford Streets, Boston. His residence at this time was at the foot of Summer Street, a site afterwards occupied by a mariner's chapel. Mr. Everett was considered as belonging to the liberal wing of the Congregational body, and a great personal regard existed between him and Dr. Freeman, of King's Chapel. His preaching was esteemed as serious and practical, unadorned in matter and unimpassioned in manner. After a successful ministry of ten years, his health, which had never been robust, compelled his resignation, and he was dismissed May 26, 1792. He retired to an interesting Colonial house at "Five Corners," in Dorchester, lately destroyed to make way for the new boulevard. It had been built, about 1770, by a Royalist, Col. Robert Oliver.

Mr. Everett resided here in rural retirement, broken only by one or two visits to Philadelphia, and to Saratoga Springs, then recently discovered. On the 22d of Feb., 1800, he delivered, in the meeting house in Dorchester, one of the first orations in memory of General Washington, for whom he entertained the most affectionate reverence, having seen him at Cambridge, in 1775, and having been introduced to him at Philadelphia, in 1791; and although in extremely feeble health, he felt it his duty to perform this memorial service. The meeting house was of course hung with black, and it is recorded that, when the hangings were taken down, the orator was "complimented with a suit of clothes from them."

Mr. Everett was appointed a judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1799, and in 1802 was nominated for Congress in the interest of the Federal party, being a supporter of the policy of President Adams. The Federalists, however, were unpopular in Norfolk county, and Mr. Everett was defeated by a large majority. He did not long survive the election, being struck with paralysis, from which he died.

Mr. Everett was a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the intimate friend and correspondent of some of the most conspicuous and estimable characters of his day, among whom may be named his fellow-townsmen, Hon. Fisher Ames, and Rev. Manasseh Cutler. He was a great lover of books, as far as the limited resources of the time allowed, and is spoken of, in Allen's Biographical Dictionary, as a man of great intellectual force.

He was a victualler, and appears, at one time, to have kept a half-way house in Roxbury, on the road from Boston to Dedham. In 1778, he bought from Nathaniel Whiting, for £380, 41 acres of land, with house and shop, in Roxbury, on the road from Boston to Dedham, which he sold in 1784 for £400. Later, through some unknown misfortune, he became bankrupt, as Sept. 14, 1789, the Supreme Judicial Court gave judgment against him for £50 4s. 10d., and the deputy sheriff levied on all his goods, lands and chattels. His lands brought only £7; his household furniture, sold at public vendue, £24 8s. 11d., and he was turned out into the cold with six small children to care for. He seems to have provided for them, for, on his death, his administrator found property valued at $512, but not enough to pay his debts.

He served as private in the 3d company of Roxbury, Capt. Lemuel Child, in Col. Wm. Heath's regiment, on the Lexington alarm. He and his wife owned the covenant, July 14, 1776, in the First Parish Church, West Roxbury. He bought a pew in the church, Mar. 10, 1783, which was later taken by execution and sold.

OTIS⁶ EVERETT (Oliver,⁵ Joseph,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), born Oct. 17, 1778, at Sharon, Mass.; died Jan. 4, 1849, at Fitchburg, Mass., and buried at Forest Hills, Boston, Mass.; married 1st, May 24, 1801, Hannah Ross, daughter of Nathaniel and Sarah Ross, born May 14, 1779, at Ipswich, Mass.; died Aug. 30, 1804, at Boston; married 2d, Feb. 18, 1806, Elizabeth Hurd, daughter of John and Mary (Russell) Hurd, of Boston, born Mar. 29, 1784; died May 26, 1822, at Boston; married 3d, Jan. 29, 1829, Lucretia Gore, daughter of Jeremiaah and Hannah (Richards) Gore, of Boston, born May 3, 1790; died July 23, 1832; married 4th, Nov. 21, 1843, Mrs. Lydia (Doolittle) Lord, who died Nov. 21, 1882, aged 82 years, at Northfield, Mass.

The son of a farmer in a small country town, he enjoyed only a limited education, and at a very early age went to Boston, where he served his apprenticeship in "old Master May's" store at the South end. On the death of Mr. May, he formed, at the age of nineteen, a partnership with John French, under the name of French and Everett. Both being young men of energy and enterprise, their store became a favorite resort, and they accumulated large fortunes. This firm was dissolved in 1817, and Mr. Everett formed a new partnership with Richard Childs, at the head of Central wharf. After a few years he retired from business. He was elected to several offices under the city and State governments, but his health failing, he retired to the country to reside with his son, Rev. Oliver Capen Everett, at Northfield, Mass. The rest of his life was passed between the country and the city; but not in idleness, for it was his most striking characteristic that he never knew how to be idle. The last few years of his life were occupied in a constant series of labors for others.

HON. MELATIAH⁶ EVERETT (John,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), born June 24, 1777, in that part of Wrentham, Mass., which became Foxboro'; died Feb. 26, 1858, at Wrentham; married Oct. 20, 1805, Nancy Shaw, born July 6, 1783, at Raynham, Mass.; died Mar. 22, 1861, at Wrentham. She was daughter of Col. Jonathan Shaw, of Raynham, a gallant soldier of the Revolution, and Lydia Godfrey, who married second, Dr. George Wheaton, of Norton, Mass.

He was graduated at Brown University in 1802; afterwards studied law with Dr. George Wheaton, of Norton, then Judge

M. Coere A

Wheaton, whose step-daughter he married, and practiced his profession in Foxboro' until his house burned down, in 1832, when he removed to Wrentham. He was town clerk and treasurer of Foxboro', justice of the peace and quorum, representative to the General Court in 1831, and senator for Norfolk county 1841 and 1842. He had much self-respect and dignity of character. After his removal, when the church at Wrentham demanded that he should denounce the Masonic fraternity, of which he had been a member, he refused to do so and retained his membership with the church of Foxboro' until his death. He was fond of horticulture, and his garden contained every new fruit, or flower, that he could obtain. He was quiet and unostentatious in his manner; was a great reader who remembered everything he read: was one of the most learned men in Norfolk county, and an early and decided advocate of the temperance reform in 1817. His will was dated Apr. 4, 1855, and proved Feb. 1, 1859.

Having no children, he adopted two daughters of his twin brother, Metcalf Everett,—Eleanor Ware Everett and Nancy Shaw Everett, who inherited his estate.

Capt. METCALF⁶ EVERETT (John,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), born June 24, 1777, in that part of Wrentham, Mass., which became Foxboro'; died Aug. 22, 1858, at Foxboro', and was buried at Wrentham: married July 4, 1801, Fanny Shepard, daughter of Major Joseph and Abigail (Hodges) Shepard,* of

* Major Joseph Shepard, of Foxboro', Mass., b. Apr. 11, 1746, d. Jan. 4, 1832, was the son of Joseph Shepard, of Foxboro', and Mary Pond, dau. of Ephraim Pond, of Wrentham. He was one of the Wrentham minute-men, who marched to Boston at the Lexington alarm, and served as corporal in Capt. Samuel Fisher's company, from Wrentham, in the Rhode Island campaign, 1776.—[Mass. Rev. Rolls, xii: 10; ii: 16¹/₂.] He was commissioned first lieutenant, July 1, 1781, and held this position until the end of the war, as appears by the roster in the office of the Adj't-General of Mass. He married May 21, 1772, Abigail Hodges, b. Oct. 4, 1746; d. Apr. 16, 1808, dau. of Lient. Military Rolls, xcvi: 379.] He served also as a minute man in the Mansfield company at the Lexington alarm.—[Mass. Rev. Rolls, xiii: 190.]

Foxboro', born Mar. 10, 1780, at Foxboro'; died there Nov. 2, 1859, and was buried at Wrentham.

He was a farmer at Foxboro', where he lived the greater part of his life; for a few years he was engaged in manufacture at Haydenville, Mass., with his brother-in-law, Daniel Hayden. The war of 1812-15 interfered with this enterprise, and he returned to his native place. He was town assessor for two years, constable for twenty years, and captain of a foot company in the 2d regiment, 2d brigade, 1st division, Mass. militia, 1812 to 1814. He led the church choir for nearly forty years. He was a man of unusual physical strength and endurance; in his earlier years, he had the distinction, then deemed considerable, of being the champion wrestler of his town and the vicinity. When seventy-five years old, he walked to church in Boston and back the same day. His character was marked by a singular serenity of temper which nothing could disturb. His son, John M. Everett, was appointed administrator of his estate, Oct. 5, 1858.

Hon. HORACE⁶ EVERETT (John,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), born July 18, 1779, at Foxboro', Mass.; died Jan. 30, 1851, at Windsor, Vt.; married Oct. 30, 1811, at Windsor, Vt., Mary Leverett, daughter of William and Lucretia (Hallam) Lev-erett, a descendant of John Leverett, governor of Mass., 1673–1679, born July 14, 1792, at Windsor, Vt.: died in 1877, at Angelica, N. Y.

He was graduated at Brown University, 1797, and removed the same year to Windsor, where he studied law with Amasa Paine, Esq., and commenced practice in 1800. He was District Attorney for Windsor county 1813–17; member of the State Legislature 1819 and 1822, and a prominent member of the Constitutional Convention in 1828. He was representative in the U. S. Congress from 1828 to 1843, at which time he was the oldest member, or the “father of the house.” While serving in Congress, his thorough knowledge of the manufacturing interests of the country was recognized, and his speeches upon matters concerning them were received and read with marked attention. He was also a zealous advocate on the floor of the house, of the rights of the American Indians. As a member of the Ways and Means Committee, he took an important part in the framing of the tariff of 1842. This owed its perfection, and probably its passage, to the foresight and industry of Mr. Everett, who, perceiving that the tariff bill must be passed early in the coming short session of Congress, if passed at all, remained in Washington, many weeks after the close of the first session, to complete and perfect this tariff bill. It was called after the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, “the Fillmore tariff,” but it was really the tariff of Horace Everett, whose profound knowledge of the manufacturing interests of the country determined its form, and whose sagacity and industry secured its passage.

HON. ALEXANDER HILL⁶ EVERETT (Oliver,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), born Mar. 19, 1790, at Boston, Mass.; died June 28, 1847, at Macao, China; married Sept. 21, 1816, Lueretia Orne Peabody, daughter of Judge Oliver and Frances (Bourne) Peabody, of Exeter, N. H., born July 4, 1786, at Exeter; died Feb. 21, 1862, at Boston.

He was graduated at Harvard College in 1806, with the highest honors of his class, although the youngest member. After leaving college, he taught one year at Phillips Exeter (N. H.) Academy. He then studied in the office of John Quincy Adams, whom he accompanied to Russia in 1809 as an attaché to the legation. In 1815, Hon. William Eustis was appointed Chargé d'Affaires to the United Kingdom of the Netherlands, and Mr. Everett became his secretary. He returned after a year. He was appointed Chargé as successor to Mr. Eustis in 1818, and occupied the position until 1824. From 1825 to 1829, under the administration of President J. Q. Adams, Mr. Everett was Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Kingdom of Spain. Upon his return to Boston he became editor of the North American Review. He was a member of the Massachusetts General Court 1830-1835. In 1840, he was appointed confidential agent of the United States to Cuba. While residing there he accepted the presidency of Jefferson College, La. Failing health soon compelled him to return to New England. In 1845, he was appointed under the administration of President Polk, United States Commissioner to China. He sailed in the summer of 1846 for his post, but did not reach his destination, dying at Macao, the following year. His wife accompanied him in all his journeys abroad, and shared her husband's labors. After his death, she returned to Boston, where she made her home and manifested an active interest in several charitable institutions.

Mr. Everett received from Yale College the degree of B. A., in 1807; from Harvard College of A. M., in 1809; from the University of Vermont of LL. D., in 1826; and from Middlebury (Vt.) College of LL. D., in 1839. He was a member of the American Philosophical society, a fellow of the American Academy and a member of the Massachusetts Historical society.

Mr. Everett published a volume of Orations, a volume of Critical and Miscellaneous Essays, and a volume of poems. He was a contributor to the Patriot, the Monthly Anthology, the North American Review, the Quarterly Review, of Boston, and the Democratic Review, of New York.

Hon. (previously Rev.) EDWARD⁶ EVERETT (Oliver,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), born Apr. 11, 1794, in Dorchester, Mass.; died Jan. 15, 1865, in Summer street, Boston, Mass., and was buried at Mt. Auburn; married in Atkinson (now Congress) street, Boston, May 8, 1822, Charlotte Gray Brooks, daughter of Hon. Peter Chardon and Ann (Gorham) Brooks.* She was born Nov. 4, 1800, in the house where she was afterwards married, and died July 2, 1859, in Summer street, Boston.

* Among Mrs. Everett's ancestry on the father's side were Rev. John Cotton and Sir Richard Saltonstall; on the mother's, John Howland of the "Mayflower," and Hon. Nathaniel Gorham, signer of the Constitution U. S.

Mr. Everett obtained his earliest education in Dorchester, and subsequently at the North (now Eliot) and Latin schools in Boston, receiving Franklin Medals in 1804 and 1806. He also attended a school kept in Short (now Kingston) Street, by Hon. Ezekiel Webster, whose substitute for some weeks was his brother, Hon. Daniel Webster. He attended Phillips Exeter Academy in the spring and summer of 1807. In that year he entered Harvard College, and was graduated with the first honors in 1811, although younger than all his classmates, among whom were Henry H. Fuller, Nathaniel L. Frothingham, Ebenezer Lane and Samuel Gilman. In his senior year he was editor and chief contributor to the "Harvard Lyceum," one of the very earliest college periodicals in the country. After graduation he became Latin tutor for two years. In 1812 he delivered the Phi Beta Kappa poem. His original intention was to study law, but he was diverted to theology, a determination which he afterwards regretted, and pursued his studies at Cambridge during his tutorship, being on the most intimate terms with Rev. President Kirkland. In 1813 he was elected pastor of the church in Brattle square, Boston, which under the pastorate of the lamented Buckminster had ranged itself on the Liberal or Unitarian side of the controversy dividing the Congregational churches. He preached here for thirteen months to the entire satisfaction of his people and of the sister churches. But the combination of pastoral and pulpit work was entirely too burdensome for so young a man, and he resigned his parish to accept the chair of Greek Literature at Harvard College, recently founded by an anonymous benefactor, later known to be Samuel Eliot, Esq., whose name is now attached to the Professorship.

Mr. Everett in order to qualify himself for this new sphere of work sailed for Europe in the spring of 1815. He passed two years at Göttingen University, where his life-long friend, George Ticknor, was studying at the same time, they being the first native American students to attend the instruction of a German University. To this Mr. Everett devoted himself with the greatest assiduity, his special instructor being Dissen, the editor of Pindar. He was also on the most friendly relations with the venerable Blumenbach. He afterwards travelled in Germany, Great Britain (where he made the acquaintance of Scott, Byron, Mackintosh, Zachary Macaulay, and other distinguished persons), France, Italy and Greece, returning through the Principalities and Austria to America in the autumn of 1819.* He continued to preach in various pulpits while holding his professorship, and delivered courses of lectures on classical antiquities in the ancient "Concert Hall" in Boston, which were probably the first lectures of a popular character in this country.

In 1824, in the general cessation of party strife, he was elected to the National House of Representatives, and continued to sit there through five Congresses till 1835. He was a strong supporter of John Quincy Adams's administration, and when Mr. Adams's friends became definitely organized as "National Republicans," subsequently adopting the name of "Whigs," he was a loyal member of the party, receiving also the "anti-Masonic" vote. In Congress he was at the head of the Committee of Foreign affairs, even when the Speaker was of the opposite party, besides giving special labor to securing pensions for the veterans of the Revolution, and resisting the measures for deporting the Indians beyond the Mississippi. He drew up the minority report in favor of the United States Bank, and urged the payment of the French Spoliation Claims.

In 1835, he was elected governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and continued by successive re-elections in 1836, 1837, and 1838, losing the election in 1839 by a single vote. As governor he was active in establishing the Board of Education, and the system of Normal Schools. In 1840, he again visited Europe accompanied by his family, and while residing in the neighborhood of Florence, was appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to England. This position he filled with signal ability and discretion, many intricate questions being under discussion by the two governments, such as the North Eastern Boundary, the right of search and the seizure of American vessels.

* Some interesting reminiscences of these travels will be found in the "Mt. Vernon Papers," published in 1860.

He was offered the place of Commissioner to China when that post was created, but declined. He occupied a most enviable place in the social circles of England, and received the degrees of LL. D. from Dublin and Cambridge, and D. C. L. from Oxford.

Mr. Webster, under whose recommendation he had originally been sent to England, retired from the cabinet in 1843, and the State Department successively passed into the hands of Messrs. Legaré, Upshur, and Calhoun; the last standing at the very opposite pole of politics from the first; but there was entire friendliness between Mr. Everett and all of them.

In 1845 the accession of Mr. Polk to the Presidency and of Mr. Buchanan to the State Department caused Mr. Everett's recall. He returned to Boston in September, 1845, and almost immediately received the invitation to take the Presidency of Harvard College, resigned by Hon. Josiah Quincy in the previous month. Mr. Everett was strongly, nay passionately, urged to accept this office by a large number of friends, who labored under the belief that it would be eminently congenial to him. Whether this might under any circumstances have been the case, it is now impossible to say; but his own misgivings were very serious, and his oldest and most intimate friends strongly advised against it, the event proving they were entirely right. He yielded at last to importunities and assurances of active support, and was inaugurated in April, 1846. Long before this ceremony it had become evident that the place was a bed of thorns. The very limited resources of the college, and the traditions of earlier days, threw into the hands of the President himself almost the entire details of discipline and administration. He undoubtedly made, what is always talked of as a great desideratum in such a post, the personal acquaintance of a very large number of the students; but they came before him mostly under the pressure either of dry routine or of serious censure, and it was only by snatches that he found a chance to impress himself upon those who could really appreciate such a President's influence. In three years his untiring exertions to maintain high scholarship and orderly conduct, in spite of languor or opposition in quarters where he had a right to look for warm support, had seriously shaken his health and spirits, and he resigned in February, 1849, from a real dread that, like the President under whom he himself had entered college, he might die in office. His exertions, thankless as they seemed at the time, were not without fruit; the Lawrence Scientific School is a brilliant memorial of his Presidency; but perhaps a better one is that he left to his successors an institution far firmer in tone than when he took it. He continued to live for more than two years in the old President's House, now called, in memory of its first, instead of its last occupant, Wadsworth House.

In November, 1851, he returned to Boston, which remained his home for the rest of his life. He was at once appointed on the Board of Trustees of the newly-founded Public Library, and had several years before offered as a gift his collection of public documents, amounting to over 1,000 volumes; the initial gift in the history of the library.

On Mr. Fillmore's succeeding to the Presidency of the United States in 1850, Mr. Webster became Secretary of State, and renewed the most confidential consultation with Mr. Everett on the chief points under diplomatic discussion. On Mr. Webster's death in 1852, Mr. Everett was appointed his successor for the remainder of the Presidential term. His four months' service in this post was eminently to the satisfaction of his countrymen. His letter repelling the contention of Lord John Russell that the European powers had equal interest with the United States in the destinies of Cuba, was felt to be a most powerful manifesto, and Lord John's petulant reply elicited a crushing retort from Mr. Everett; this latter paper appeared after Mr. Everett had ceased to hold the seal of Secretary, but with the cordial assent and encouragement of his successor, Mr. Marcy.

In February, 1853, Mr. Everett was chosen to the Senate of the United States. He took up the duties of this post vigorously, and especially distinguished himself by a speech in opposition to the Kansas-Nebraska Bill. From the vote on this bill he was shut out, by a misunderstanding almost amounting to a breach of faith on the part of the administration Senators. The cares of the position, coupled with anxieties at home, five hundred miles from the scene of his duties, so seriously affected his health and spirits that his physician insisted on his resignation. This was given early in 1854, and Mr. Everett never afterwards held public office, except that he was an elector on the Lincoln ticket in 1865.

His health gradually becoming restored, he resumed actively the work of public speaking, in which he had already gained national distinction. His earlier efforts in this line, beginning with the Phi Beta Kappa oration on the visit of Lafayette in 1824, had always attracted large audiences, and drawn forth the warmest applause. But those in the last ten years of his life were, in his own opinion, and that of the best judges, every way deeper, richer and more sympathetic. His own decided preferences were for his address on the "History and Memories of Dorchester," 4th July, 1855, and on the "Uses of Astronomy," at the founding of the Dudley Observatory in 1856.* On the 22d of February, 1857, he delivered an address on the character of Washington, under the auspices of the Mercantile Library Association of Boston. He was asked to repeat it in various places, and about this time the work of raising a fund for the purchase of Mount Vernon was started in the South. Mr. Everett engaged in the work of delivering his Washington oration all over the Union for the benefit of this fund, repeating it a hundred and thirty-eight times, and realizing in all little less than ninety thousand dollars.

The attention of Robert Bonner, proprietor and editor of the "New York Ledger," was attracted to these exertions; and he proposed to Mr. Everett to contribute a weekly article to that paper for one year, in consideration of which Mr. Bonner agreed to pay ten thousand dollars to the Mount Vernon Fund. The offer was accepted, the articles being afterwards published in a volume as the "Mount Vernon Papers."

In 1860, the violence of the contending parties North and South, inspired by the question of slavery, led to the calling a convention of the Constitutional Union party at Baltimore, which nominated Mr. Everett for Vice-President, and John Bell, of Tennessee, for President, Mr. Everett having peremptorily refused to be named for the higher place, and indeed being extremely reluctant to be on the ticket at all.

Mr. Everett was profoundly and painfully interested in the events which immediately led to the Civil War. He was not in the least surprised at the secession, having prophesied some such measure for years, if the extremists on both sides persisted in urging their respective views of the Slavery question. He took a prominent part in all measures tending to a peaceable settlement, being one of the Peace Committee, representing all the States, which visited Washington in the winter of 1860-61. But when Fort Sumter was attacked, he unhesitatingly threw the whole weight of his influence on the side of the Union, and for the next four years his pen, his tongue, his time and his purse were at the service of the Nation. His oration, delivered at New York on the 4th of July, 1861, was made the introduction to the "Rebellion Record," as giving the best statement of the causes of the war. He was by no means an unswerving partisan of Mr. Lincoln's administration; indeed, he was no partisan at all, and he never ceased to regret the consigning of Gen. McClellan to private life. But of the absolute duty and necessity of pressing the war with the utmost vigor, and refusing all terms with the South, he never entertained the remotest question, or failed to urge it upon others. An elaborate address on this theme was delivered by him in a vast number of Northern cities in the darkest period of the struggle. It would be impossible to mention here all the varied forms into which his patriotic energy threw itself. Among the most remarkable were his oration on the field of Gettysburg, at the dedication of the National Cemetery, the same occasion which gave rise to Mr. Lincoln's memorable address; and his exertions at the close of the year 1864, in raising a fund of $100,000 for the relief of the loyalists in East Tennessee.

In the autumn of 1864, Mr. Everett was offered the place of elector-at-large on the Republican, or Lincoln ticket. He did not immediately accept it. He had felt that Mr. Lincoln's administration was open to serious criticism, and he believed General McClellan had received unworthy treatment. He finally, however, determined that it was his duty, at so critical a moment, to give the Government all the support of which it was capable. The last entertainment held in his house was a dinner to the members of the Electoral College of the State, to which many distinguished persons outside that body were invited.

Mr. Everett, after his resignation of the presidency of the college, had made his permanent home at 32 Summer street, in Boston. He had, however, made many attempts to secure a country home, and at last purchased a very lovely estate in the town of Winchester, on the northwest border of Mystic pond. Here he built a house for his eldest son, which was inhabited by the latter almost to the day of his death. But while its erection was under discussion, the city of Charlestown petitioned the General Court for leave to convert the upper half of the lake into a reservoir for the supply of water to the city, thus flooding a considerable tract of Mr. Everett's land. Believing this project to be of no real public value (as it has proved), as well as a private injury, Mr. Everett appeared before the Legislature against it, but in vain, and the last years of his life were subjected to a serious strain by the efforts necessary to obtain adequate compensation. In the second week of the year 1865, he spoke at the final hearing before the referees on this question, and the very same day, Monday, January 9, 1865, he made his last public appearance at a meeting in Faneuil Hall, called to take measures of relief for the distressed citizens of Savannah. He returned to his house thoroughly chilled, and never left it again. On the night of Saturday the 14th, his sickness seemed in great measure to have yielded; he appeared to be sleeping peacefully at 10 P. M. But the perusal of a letter of painful import, brought to him shortly before that hour, weighed on his mind and troubled his sleep, and at about 4 A. M., on Sunday, January 15—the night of the capture of Fort Fisher—he rose from his bed, and fell by a stroke of apoplexy which shortly ended his life at the age of seventy years, eight months, and four days. His death caused a profound sensation throughout the country, and many tributes in prose and verse were paid to his memory. His funeral was held from the First Church in Chauncy street, Boston, January 19, 1865.

Mr. Everett's disposition was naturally cheerful and sanguine; but a succession of domestic and public trials had greatly affected his spirits, and rendered him in his later years at once abstracted and sad. The idea, often promulgated, that he was of a cold and unsympathetic disposition, is entirely false; he was overflowing with affection and tenderness to his own family, using that word in a very extended sense, and his life was filled with acts of kindness to a large circle, many of whose members had slight claim on him. He was extremely sensitive in his entire nature; anything like inaccuracy, coarseness or cruelty revolted him; and it was hard for him to understand how others should not be eager to maintain the same high standard of scrupulous conscientiousness that he had set for himself. He was more than once accused of lack of courage in grappling with political problems; but the event generally showed that the so-called courage of his opponents was rather hot-headed rashness, and that his cautious action had been dictated by the highest wisdom. He was often spoken of as a devotee to scholarship and literature, chiefly living in his library. The latter statement is true; he was there engaged from early morning till late at night, not in literary indulgence, but in absorbing correspondence, and in preparation of addresses and other matter intended to meet the calls of other men, to the absolute renunciation of all his own favorite projects. While it is unquestionable that Mr. Everett's speeches were carefully studied and prepared as to their matter, there was very little of this in their delivery. To all conventional tones and gestures he had a great dislike.

Mr. Everett became a member of the First Parish Church at Cambridge, under the pastorate of Dr. Abiel Holmes. While himself pastor of the church in Brattle Square he was ranked with the Unitarians, and while at home was an unfailing attendant of the churches connected with this body. He had a very great dislike to all sectarian divisions; while travelling, he frequently worshiped at Episcopalian, Presbyterian and other churches. His reverence for the Bible and all the ordinances of religion was profound and unvaried; and his aversion to what he generally called "German Neologisms" invincible.

The birthplace of Edward Everett, the house at Five Corners in Dorchester, where the greater number of Rev. Oliver Everett's* children were born, was not occupied by the family after the early years of the century, although it remained in Mr. Edward Everett's ownership for many years. He was finally obliged to sell it, greatly to his chagrin, and in later years sought in vain to repurchase it. As pastor of the Brattle Street Church, he occupied the parsonage in Court Street, which long remained the only inhabited house in that part of Boston. The iron building, second from Tremont Street, now occupies the front. While Professor at Cambridge, he lived in what is now known as the Fay House, Garden Street; after his marriage, in the celebrated Craigie House, Brattle Street; and later in a house still standing on Kirkland Street, facing the entrance to Memorial Hall. While a Representative in Congress, he lived, first, at the corner of the Medford and Lexington Roads (now Broadway and Main Streets, Somerville,) on Winter Hill; and, afterwards, on Town-Hill Street, Charlestown, where he was living when chosen Governor. He moved to Summer Street, Boston, in 1837. For three summers he occupied a house belonging to Marshall Spring, in the western part of Watertown.

Mr. Everett was above the medium height — five feet, ten and a half inches. Slender in youth, his frame assumed very massive proportions towards the last, and very active public speaking

The entrance was in a garden on the east side, where the large stone steps are still in place, though the door itself and many other old features of the house have been sadly changed. The staircase was a remarkably fine piece of carving.

often four nights in a week — developed his chest in a striking degree. His complexion was fair, and somewhat florid. His hair, first auburn and then chestnut, had become gray for some years before his death. His eyes were hazel, and somewhat near-sighted. In his youth he had been of very active habits; these became discontinued in later life; but he preserved very considerable physical strength to the last, with occasional protracted sicknesses.

Mr. Everett was frequently the subject of portraiture; but very few of the artists' efforts can be called really successful. The paintings of him in early life by Gilbert Stuart, and his nephew, G. Stuart Newton, R. A., are eminently pleasing. Of the likenesses of him in middle or later life, the bust by Hiram Powers far surpasses all others in accuracy and beauty.

SARAH PRESTON⁶ EVERETT (Oliver,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), born Sept. 5, 1796, at Dorchester, Mass.; died Nov. 14, 1866, at Brookline, Mass.; married Sept. 5, 1816, at Boston, Mass., Hon. Nathan Hale, son of Rev. Enoch and Octavia (Throop) Hale, and nephew of Capt. Nathan Hale, born Aug. 16, 1784, at Westhampton, Mass.; died Feb. 8, 1863, at Brookline.

Nathan Hale was graduated A. B. at Williams College in 1804, and received the degree of A. M. from Dartmouth College, 1810. He was for two years a tutor at Phillips Exeter Academy, studied law at Boston, and was admitted to the bar at Boston in 1810. For four years he followed his profession; in 1813, he became editor of the Boston Weekly Messenger. The same year he purchased the Boston Daily Advertiser, the first, and for many years the only, daily paper published in Boston. This he edited until 1863. He also edited and published the Monthly Chronicle, 1840-42; and helped to found the North American Review and the Christian Examiner. He was acting chairman of the original Board of Internal Improvement in Massachusetts in 1828; an early advocate of railroads in New England; and the first president of the Boston and Worcester Railroad. He was at various times a member of both houses of the General Court of Massachusetts, and a delegate to the State Constitutional Conventions of 1820 and 1853. He was a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and of the Massachusetts Historical Society. He received the degree of LL. D. from Harvard College in 1853.

Mrs. Hale was the centre of a large circle of friends, to whom she was endeared by many estimable qualities; while her excellent judgment and varied mental resources made her the efficient companion in the multiplied labors of Mr. Hale. She wrote many books for children.

He was admitted to the bar, but preferring literature, became connected with the Boston Miscellany as editor, and associated with his father in the editorial management of the Boston Daily Advertiser. In 1853, he retired from editorial work. Subsequently, he was associated with his brother, the Rev. Edward Everett Hale, in the publication of Old and New. From 1869-71, he was acting professor of mental and moral philosophy in Union College, Schenectady, N. Y.

SAMUEL⁶ EVERETT (Samuel,⁵ Israel,⁴ Josiah,³ Israel,² *Richard*¹), born Apr. 30, 1769, at Torrington, Conn.; died Apr. 15, 1809, at Granville, Ohio; married May 24, 1791, probably at Granby, Conn., Annis Buttles, daughter of Jonathan and Lois (Viets) Buttles, of North Granby, born Sept. 29, 1771, at Granby; died Jan. 11, 1853, at Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

At the opening of the nineteenth century, Mr. Everett, influenced by reports of the fertility of the Ohio lands, conceived the project of an emigration to that State. He canvassed his neighbors, and soon a church was organized in Granville, Mass., the town adjoining Granby, where he lived, for the purpose of emigration. Mr. Everett, whose name was first signed to the petition, was chosen the clerk. In 1804, this church colony sold their eastern possessions and invested the proceeds in good land, located midway between the Muskingum and Scioto rivers, in what is now Licking county, Ohio. The church numbered twenty-five, and was provided with deacons as well as a clerk. They made the long journey of seven hundred miles with ox teams. On Sunday, Nov. 17, 1805, the party reached their destination, and held public worship in the open air. The same sermon which Rev. Dr. Cooley, the Massachusetts pastor, had delivered on their last Sunday at home, was read, and other exercises held. Soon a town organization was effected, after the New England fashion, and Mr. Everett was elected town clerk. In this capacity, he wrote the deeds, plotted the farm lots into sections and ranges, and for this service he was awarded the best town lot.

The succeeding year Mr. Everett returned to New England and removed his family, his father and his mother. He also carried a small town library, and the blade of a mill saw. He erected the first frame house in the new town, on his lot, about two miles west of the centre of the present town. It was made of planks set upright, battened with strips over the cracks, and fastened to the hills by spikes, made by the blacksmith. Mrs. Everett planted under the east window a rose bush which she had brought with her from New England; and in her garden she cultivated New England herbs and flowers. The new town, the second in the county, was named Granville, now an important city of middle Ohio.

Additional to memoir of Hon. Edward Everett:

Soon after his return to America, in 1819, Mr. Everett was put in charge of the North American Review, which he continued to edit while professor. The increased vigor and liveliness were at once apparent, and the Review rose to a height of popularity and respect hitherto unknown to American periodicals. At that time, America was overrun with a succession of travellers from Europe — Fearon, Faux, Schmidt, Mrs. Trollope, and many others — whose comments on our institutions and manners, almost invariably flippant and patronizing, and frequently inviting much harsher criticisms, were received with obvious satisfaction by the periodical press in Europe. Mr. Everett made it a special work to criticise the critics, which he did in a strain of mingled jest and earnest that proved thoroughly effective in bringing them to a more decent and serious tone.

Mr. Everett continued to contribute frequently to the Review after the editorship had passed from his hands, and carried on the magazine himself for a short time during the absence in Europe of one of his successors.

Hon. HORACE⁷ EVERETT (Horace,⁶ John,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), born Feb. 8, 1819, at Windsor, Vt., died Nov. 3, 1890, at Council Bluffs, Io. ; married July 14, 1851, at Fayette, Mo., Mary Leonard, daughter of Judge Abiel Leonard, of the Supreme Court of Missouri, born Feb. 4, 1833, at Fayette, and is still living.

He was sent at the age of eight years to the Kimball Union Academy, at Meriden, N. H. ; when fourteen years old he entered the University of Vermont, at Burlington, and graduated therefrom in 1837. He then spent two years in the study of law, under his distinguished father, and was admitted to the bar. In 1841, he settled in Gainesville, Ala., and practiced in that State and in Mississippi for fifteen years. In 1855, he settled at Council Bluffs, where he continued to reside until his death. In every enterprise relating to the welfare of the city of his adoption he was an active factor. He was one of the men to whose zeal the city was indebted for the location of the terminus of the Union Pacific railroad. He was the first president of the free public library of Council Bluffs, and continued in that position until a few months before his death. It was largely to his earnest efforts that Council Bluffs enjoys the distinction of being the first town in Iowa to establish a free public library, and voluntarily to vote a tax upon the people for its maintenance. He was one of the incorporators of the public school library of that city. He was one of the trustees of the Fairview Cemetery Association, of which he was the president from the time of its organization, and to him was due the selection of the romantic and beautiful site it now occupies. He served one term as a member of the City Council, but declined re-election.

He was appointed by President Lincoln to the responsible office of collector of internal revenue for the First District of Iowa, embracing the whole of the southwestern portion of the State. He was twice elected by the Legislature as one of the regents of the State University in Iowa City, and was regarded as one of the most zealous and efficient members of that board. His great interest in everything relating to the history of the State, and his zeal and enthusiasm in the collection of old books and manuscripts, led to his appointment as trustee of the Iowa Historical Society.

Mr. Everett was a member of the Episcopal church, and of the vestry of St. Paul's church from the organization of the parish. To his long continued benefactions during the years of his residence at Council Bluffs, that church owes much of its present success, and to every worthy object he was a liberal giver. While he was a successful and practical man of affairs, his tastes and pleasures were those of a scholar. A lifetime member of the whig and republican parties, a strong Union man, and always an advocate of the emancipation of the negro, he sacrificed large property interests in the South rather than remain where free speech was denied him. A devoted lover of nature, he was never happier than when rustivating on his farm near Council Bluffs, where, under his personal supervision, were planted one hundred acres of forest trees, and forty acres of apple orchards. He retained to the last a love for his birthplace, "delightful Windsor," as he called it. He was not willing that the old homestead should ever pass into the hands of strangers, and early in life purchased the place and made provision in his will for retaining the old home in the family. He was a man of great dignity and refinement, of unfailing courtesy, and one of the most sympathetic of men; but of a retiring nature, and wholly unambitious of public life. He was in failing health for a year previous to his death. On the 30th of September, 1890, he was stricken with apoplexy and died the 3d of November following.

CHARLOTTE BROOKS⁷ EVERETT (Edward,⁶ Oliver,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), born Aug. 13, 1825, in Atkinson street, Boston, Mass.; died Dec. 15, 1879, at Washington, D. C.; married Aug. 20, 1850, at Cambridge, Mass., by Rev. Nathaniel Langdon Frothingham, D.D., Capt. Henry Augustus Wise, U. S. N., son of George D. and Catherine (Stansbury) Wise, of the Virginia Wises, born May 24, 1819, at the Navy Yard, Brooklyn, N. Y.; died Apr. 3, 1869, at Naples, Italy.

Although of Southern blood on both sides, Capt. Wise resisted most flattering offers to join the Confederacy, and remained loyal to the Union throughout the Civil war. His work was in the ordnance bureau, of which he ultimately was chief, with the rank of commander, being esteemed so valuable in that post that every request for sea service was refused him, whereby he lost the promotion accorded to his equals, who never ordered a gun fired which had not been sent them by his orders. His death resulted, after years of suffering, from injuries received in testing guns at the Washington Navy Yard. He was a man of brilliancy and fascination, the author of "Los Gringos," "Tales for the Marines," and other lively works.

Mrs. Wise distinguished herself, in a life full of trying changes, by her strength of character and many social attractions. She was accomplished in several continental languages, which she had cultivated in long visits to Europe, speaking them with great purity and spirit. Her house in Washington was the seat of a hospitality at once most cordial and most refined.

He returned home with his parents in 1845, and was for a short time at the Boston Latin School, and then at the private school of Daniel Greenleaf Ingraham, of Boston, by whom he was prepared for admission to Harvard College. After graduation in the class of 1850, he studied at the Tremont Medical School, and received the degrees of A. M. and M. D. from Harvard University, 1853. He gave much attention to veterinary science, under the impression that it should be held in much higher consideration than it was. His health, however, soon began to fail, and he never engaged in the practice of his profession.

HENRY SIDNEY⁷ EVERETT (Edward,⁶ Oliver,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), born Dec. 31, 1834, at Charlestown, Mass.; died Oct. 4, 1898, at Bournemouth, Eng.; married June 26, 1866, at Boston, Mass., Katherine Pickman Fay, daughter of Hon. Richard Sullivan Fay (H. C. 1825) and Katherine Saunders (Pickman).

He had in boyhood a variety of instructors, notably Rev. Frederick A. Eustis (H. C. 1825) and President Samuel Eliot (H. C. 1839). He entered Harvard College in 1851, and was graduated A. B., 1855, A. M., 1862. Among his classmates were Hon. Robert Treat Paine, Gen. Francis C. Barlow, Rt. Rev. Phillips Brooks, Hon. Theodore Lyman, and Ch. J. James T. Mitchell. He took an engineering course at the Lawrence Scientific School, and was attached to the Brooklyn, N. Y., water works. He studied in Paris in 1861-63. He was for a very short time in 1864-65, on the staff of Gen. Saxton, at Hilton Head, with the rank of Major. Never having been a man of strong health, and finding the climate of New England too severe for him, he passed many years in France and England. He was appointed in 1877, Secretary of Legation at Berlin, where he served nearly seven years under J. C. Bancroft Davis, Bayard Taylor, Andrew D. White and Aaron A. Sargent, acting as chargé d'affaires in the intervals of their missions. In 1885, he was appointed by President Cleveland chief of the diplomatic bureau in the Department of State, and was not removed by President Harrison, but resigned in 1889, contrary to the wish of the Secretary, from a feeling that a misdemeanor of the subordinate officials had been too lightly handled. He remained for some time in Washington, greatly interested in the charities of the district, as he had been in those of Boston and London; but after seeking health in vain in various parts of this country, he returned to England, and died in Bournemouth as above stated.

Mr. Everett was a man of strong and attractive character, and great executive power. He was naturally very inventive, and had he continued in the active work of engineering, would unquestionably have made some striking contribution to constructive science. But his means placed him above the necessity of work, and his constitution never allowed him to accomplish all of which his mind was capable. Later in life his public services were of the greatest value to his country, and he was a persona grata at the German court. His reading was extensive, his wit lively, his views on public matters keen and sound, and his sense of public and private honor lofty and sensitive in the highest degree.

HON. WILLIAM⁷ EVERETT (Edward,⁶ Oliver,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), born* Oct. 10, 1839, at Watertown, Mass. He was educated at the Cambridge High School, where he gave the valedictory address in 1852, and the Boston Latin School, where he received a Franklin Medal in 1854. In 1855 he entered Harvard College and took his A. B. in 1859, in the class with Prof. John C. Gray, Albert Stiekney, Rev. Alexander McKenzie, Rev. William R. Huntington, Dr. Samuel W. Langmaid, Edward W. Hooper, and other well known citizens. He entered Trinity College, Cambridge, Eng., on his twentieth birthday, proceeding Bachelor of Arts (Junior Optime) in January, 1863, and being at the head of the second class of the Classical Tripas a month later. He passed two years at the Dane Law School, Harvard University, 1863-65, receiving the degree of LL. B., and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in 1866. In 1870, he was appointed Latin tutor at Harvard College, and in 1873, assistant professor of Latin, which position he resigned at the end of 1876. In 1873, he was licensed to preach by the Boston Association of (Unitarian) Ministers. In March, 1878, on the lamented death of William Reynolds Dimmock, LL. D., he was selected as Master ad interim of Adams Academy, Quincy, Mass., and made permanent head in June of the same year. This office he held for fifteen years, resigning it in August, 1893.

Mr. Everett has taken a keen interest in national politics from his boyhood, and was in the habit, while still a schoolboy, of attending the debates at the State House. The war for the Union broke out while he was a student at Cambridge (Eng.) University, and being, with all American residents in England at the time, constantly called to account by Englishmen, in most cases very imperfectly informed, for all manner of transactions in the United States, he took frequent occasion to maintain the cause of the North in the debates of the "Union Society." While in the law school, he took an active part as a speaker in Boston and the neighborhood, for the Lincoln ticket, and continued to speak at intervals in the Republican interest for several years; but the proceedings of the party leaders alienated him, and on the nomination of Mr. Blaine in 1884, he declared himself a "Mugwump," being one of the earliest to accept that designation. He received in that year the Independent, and subsequently the Democratic, nomination for Congress in the second (Plymouth) district. In 1890, he was nominated in the sixth, and in 1892, in the seventh (Lynn) district against Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, and on the latter's elevation to the Senate was elected to the fifty-third Congress at the by-election of April, 1893. He served one term, as a cordial supporter of President Cleveland, but taking extreme grounds as to civil service reform, a cause which had enlisted his early support, opposing the income tax and the building of warships. Foreseeing the certain election of a Republican in 1894, he refused to be put in nomination again. In 1896, he was a vigorous supporter of Palmer and Buckner, speaking in many large western and southern cities in opposition to both the regular tickets. In 1897, he received the nomination for Governor of Massachusetts from the Gold Democrats. Upon the death of his life-long friend, in 1897, William Royall Tyler, he was recalled to the Mastership of Adams Academy, which he now holds.

Mr. Everett delivered a course of lectures before the Lowell Institute of Boston, in 1864, on the University of Cambridge, subsequently published in a volume entitled "On the Cam." He has delivered four courses since then on The Latin Poets, Saints and Saintly Service, Some English Poets of Our Grandfathers' Time, and John Milton. He lectures from time to time to general audiences, and preaches when called upon, in Unitarian, and occasionally in other pulpits, his religious views being of a very conservative kind. He has published various articles in magazines, also "School Sermons," and some story books for boys. His Phi Beta Kappa oration in 1900 was on Patriotism, taking emphatic anti-war ground.

Mr. Everett is unmarried. He holds the degree of Ph. D. (Philology) from Harvard, of Litt. D. and LL. D. from Williams, and LL. D. also from Dartmouth.

REV. EDWARD EVERETT⁷ HALE (*Sarah Preston*⁶ Everett, Oliver,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Richard*¹), born Apr. 3, 1822, at Boston, Mass., in Tremont street at the house then the second from School street; married Oct. 13, 1852, at Hartford, Conn., Emily Baldwin Perkins, daughter of Hon. Thomas Clap and Mary Foote (Beecher) Perkins, born Nov. 23, 1829, at Hartford. Thomas Clap Perkins (Y. C. 1818) was son of Enoch (Y. C. 1781) and Anna (Pitkin) Perkins. Mary Foote Beecher was a daughter of Rev. Lyman (Y. C. 1797) and Roxana (Foote) Beecher.

Mr. Hale was prepared for college at the Boston Latin School, 1831-35; was graduated A. B. at Harvard College, 1839, A. M., 1842. In October, 1842, he was licensed to preach by the Boston Association of Ministers. He supplied the pulpit of the Second Congregational (Unitarian) Church of Northampton, Mass., in the winter of 1843, and the pulpit of All Souls' (Unitarian) Church of Washington, D. C., in the winter of 1844-45. He was ordained to the ministry in the Church of the Unity, at Worcester, Mass., April, 1846. After residing at Worcester ten years, he was installed, Mar. 1, 1856, Minister of the South Congregational (Unitarian) Church, at Boston, as successor to the Rev. Frederick Dan Huntington, where he still remains.

Edward Everett Hale

As a young man of twenty-two he published his earliest pamphlet, and about the same time commenced contributions to the magazines and newspapers. The outgrowth of his capacity in this direction resulted in his becoming editor and director of several well-known magazines. His fertility as a writer and author has been remarkable and in his generation unparalleled. The number of his books and pamphlets is too many for enumeration here, but they have given him an enduring and deserved reputation. The Lend a Hand clubs, a charitable association now widely distributed throughout America and Europe, were the outgrowth of Mr. Hale's suggestion and advocacy. So the project of an international arbitration tribunal, for adjustment of disputes between nations, originated with him, and resulted in the Hague Convention of 1899. Mr. Hale illustrates more conspicuously than any other American the power of the private citizen in public service.

Mr. Hale received the degree of D. D. from Harvard, 1879, and was a member of its board of overseers, 1866-87. He is a member of the American Philosophical Society, the American Society of Arts and Sciences, the Massachusetts Historical Society, and the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, and an honorary member of the Geographical Society of the Republic of Mexico.
